HERITAGE.

Before bottles, there were wood, resin and fire.

For millennia Arabia perfumed itself with what it burned. Frankincense from Oman and Yemen travelled with the caravans of the Incense Route; from India and South-East Asia came oud, the dark resinous wood that forms when the Aquilaria tree defends itself from a wound. The resin takes decades to mature: this is why oud has always been worth more than gold.

In the homes of the Gulf, bakhour has never gone out. The mabkhara passes from hand to hand among guests, smoke rises through the folds of robes and hair, the house is scented before a celebration, a wedding, a Friday. It is not a fashion: it is a gesture of welcome handed down from mother to daughter, from father to son.

Aquilaria

The tree oud comes from: its resin forms slowly, over decades.

Incense Route

The caravans that carried luban from Oman to the Mediterranean.

Mabkhara

The burner passed to guests as a sign of welcome.

IN LAYERS.

In Arabia perfume is not simply sprayed: it is built, one layer upon another.

01

SMOKE

Bakhour on the mabkhara: the smoke wraps the body, the hair and the clothes held above the burner. It is the base, warm and deep, staying in the fabric for hours.

02

OIL

A drop of oud or musk oil on the beard, the wrists, behind the ear, and just a touch on certain garments, such as the collar or the ghutra. Oil does not evaporate: it fixes and warms.

03

PERFUME

Last comes the spray: the fragrance settles over smoke and oil and becomes their voice. The layers merge into a single, personal trail that lasts from morning to night.

Each layer is beautiful alone. Together they become a signature.

THE WORDS.

Oud عود

The resinous wood of the Aquilaria and the oil distilled from it. In Arabic it simply means "wood".

Bakhour بخور

A blend of woods, resins, oils and musks pressed into pieces, to be burned on charcoal.

Luban لبان

Frankincense, the resin of the Boswellia tree. The finest comes from Dhofar, in Oman.

Dehn al Oud دهن العود

Pure oud oil, distilled from the wood. Used in drops, alone or beneath a perfume.

Mabkhara مبخرة

The burner: glowing charcoal is placed in it, then wood or bakhour on top.

Tola تولة

An old Gulf measure of about 12 ml: the traditional size for oils.

TAIF AL EMARAT.

Before the perfume, there was the ritual.

Taif Al Emarat is more than a fragrance house. In the Gulf, perfume is worn, burned, smoothed onto the skin and spread through the home: concentrated oils, oud woods, bakhour on charcoal, creams and mists. This catalogue gathers everything that accompanies a fragrance, from the first gesture of the morning to the welcoming of a guest.

MUSK OILS · PEACOCK · OUD OIL · AGARWOOD · BAKHOUR · MIST · BODY CREAM · AIR FRESHENER · ACCESSORIES

OILS.

Perfume as it was worn before alcohol.

A concentrated oil settles on the skin and does not evaporate: it stays, warms and changes with the wearer. In the Gulf it is the first gesture of the morning, a drop on the wrists and behind the ear.

Musk powders, oud, saffron, Taif rose: nine compositions in a one-tola bottle, the old Gulf measure of about 12 ml. A few drops last the whole day.

BLACK MUSK.

A SILENT DEPTH.

A dense, soft shadow. Black musk powder warms in the glow of red amber and the spice of saffron; creamy sandalwood beneath gives it a quiet, regal strength.

Vanilla, dates, white amber, musk

OUD.

Wood, turned liquid.

Oud oil comes from the resinous heart of the agar tree, slowly distilled. Aged oil rests for years and grows softer; rare oil comes from a single land, a single mountain.

India, Vietnam, Thailand: seven oils for those who know oud and seek it pure. A few drops are enough, alone or beneath a perfume, as is done in the Gulf.

SHEIKH ABDULLAH.

AGED OUD OIL · A FOUNDING LEGACY.

A rare oil drawn from the heartwood of centuries-old Indian trees. It has the strength of foundations and the patience of time: it carries the weight of generations with grace and authority.

AGARWOOD

Before the liquid, there was wood.

Agarwood is the wood oud comes from. Warmed on charcoal it releases a dense, sweet smoke that scents the home, clothes and hair: the gesture of Arab hospitality.

Natural woods with nothing added; woods enriched with oud oil; fragrant woods steeped in musk, amber and saffron. From collector's pieces to small 12 g boxes.

OUD WITH OUD.

WOOD IN ITS OWN OIL.

Exceptional pieces of natural agarwood, chosen one by one and left at length in a bath of aged oud oil: the wood absorbs the liquid soul of its own kind. Then a touch of Arabian essences. From sculptural collector's roots to small cuts made for giving.

AL KAS INCENSE BURNER.

A MARK OF INDIVIDUALITY.

Kas is the cup. A wooden burner of unique form, an expression of personal taste: more than an accessory, a piece that draws the eye.

DIMENSIONS	19 × 11 × 12 cm

TAIF INCENSE BURNER.

UNDERSTATED SOPHISTICATION.

Black wood, clean lines, a monolithic elegance: the contrast with the rising smoke makes a strong image. With a metal tong.

DIMENSIONS	11 × 11 × 14 cm
LINE	Accessories

TAIF BURNER.

REFINED PRESENCE, ELEVATED RITUAL.

In radiant gold, sculptural and richly detailed. In two expressions: full gold for bold luxury, or gold touched with silver for a softer, modern contrast.

TAIF LIGHTER.

THE INSTRUMENT OF CONTROL.

Made for those who want precision and safety: heat-resistant materials, adjustable flame and safety lock. The ritual, firmly in your hands.

DIMENSIONS	12 × 5 × 17 cm

TAIF CHARCOAL.

THE PURE FOUNDATION OF SCENT.

100% natural charcoal from apple wood, made for incense. It lights quickly and gives high, steady heat with no odour, smoke or sulphur: the scent stays pure.

DIMENSIONS	12.5 × 8 × 14 cm
